COLUMBIA, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY - APRIL 13, 1921

NUMBER 25

MRS. MARY CHEATHAM.

She Answered the Summons in a Louisville Sanitarium Last Sunday Morning, at 4 O'clock.

FUNERAL AND BURIAL IN COLUMBIA.

About ten days ago, Mrs. Mary Cheatham, who was the widow of the late E. E. Cheatham, was conveyed to a Louisville Sanitarium, she having been in wretched health since the death of her husband which occurred about six weeks ago. Nothing favorable came from her bedside from the time she entered the Sanitarium, and Sunday morning at 4 o'clock she was called to meet her God. There were present, at the passing, her son, Mr. Gordon Cheatham, and her half brother, Mr. Elsie Young.

The intelligence of her demise soon reached Columbia, and sorrow spread over the city.

The remains reached here Sunday night about 11 o'clock and were at once conveyed to her former home.

Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock funeral services were held at the residence, conducted by her pastor, Rev. Leslie J. B. Smith, assisted by other local ministers. The interment was in the city cemetery by the side of her late husband, many friends attending the last sad rites.

Mrs. Cheatham was a daughter of Mr. J. H. Young, this place, and was about forty-seven years old. Her mother was a Miss Grant, who died many years ago. She was a very hospital woman, possessing a kind heart, and was ever ready to assist the needy. For a number of years she was a consistent member of the Baptist Church. When laid to rest her mound was covered with many beautiful floral offerings. She leaves father, and son, one sister, and one brother; two half brothers and one half sister and two little grandsons and a daughter-in-law.

May God comfort them all in this hour of great sorrow is the wish of this paper.

True as Gospel.

A writer on the Lebanon Enterprise gives to the readers of that paper the following truthful declarations:

Infidelity never raised a man or a woman from sin. It never took a drunkard from the gutter, a gambler from his cards, or the fallen from a life of shame. It never found a man course or brutal in life and character, and made of him a kind husband and father. It never went into heathen lands among the morally degraded and lifted them out of their degradation to high state of civilization. It has never written down languages, translated literature or prepared textbooks, or planted schools, or established seminaries or colleges. It has never founded hospitals for the sick or homes for the helpless. What discoveries has it made? Has it added anything to human happiness? Does it bring one ray of comfort to the chamber of death? The religion of Jesus has done this, and more, too. "The tree is known by its fruits."

Take Notice.

All farmers who have wheat at Farmers, Mill Co., will please call and get their flour and brand. The mill will shortly go into the hands of the new firm, and business new with the old firm must be closed.

SALVATION ARMY.

Local Advisory Board Proposed.

It has just become known that Mr. Clyde E. Prall, a representative of the Salvation Army is in this county in the interest of the Home Service Program for 1921.

In the last two years the Army has instituted a new program for handling its welfare work in the country districts. Last year Advisory Boards were formed in 26 states west of the Mississippi. Fifteen hundred organizations with 40,000 members. The Advisory Board in each county is to represent the people and the army in all welfare cases. Very few people realize the extent of the army's work in this district. The Salvation Army has three institutions in Louisville. The Rescue Home, The Industrial Home and the Maternity Home. Eighty-five per cent. of all welfare cases handled by the Army at Louisville last year originated in that section of Kentucky of which this county is a part. Too many people look upon the Salvation Army as a war or city originated and do not know that 50 per cent. of all welfare cases handled by the Army throughout the U. S. originated in the country districts.

All who are indebted to the Farmers Mill Company will please call and settle at once. 24-4

Electing a Treasurer.

Quite a number of bids were presented to the Fiscal Court last week for Treasurer of Adair county, the bids ranging from one-half of a cent per year for four years to one hundred dollars. When the bids were opened it was seen that they were all made by men of good character, amply able to execute any amount of bond. The vote was taken and the majistrates went into caucus. This was on Wednesday. At Friday morning's session a motion prevailed, rejecting all bids in at that time, and that a man who had not submitted a bid, be elected. Thereupon, Squire Akin, nominated the present Treasurer, Mr. Bert Epperson, with the understanding that he was to deposit the funds placed in his hands in the Bank of Columbia and in the First National Bank, the money to be equally divided between these institutions. In keeping with this statement Mr. Bert Epperson submitted a bid, his salary to be one hundred dollars per year for four years, and it was accepted, all the majistrates voting yea. Mr. Epperson will bond, and continue as treasurer of Adair county for the term named above.

FARM WANTED.—Wanted to hear from owner of farm or good land for sale for fall delivery. L. Jones, Box 551, Olney, Ill.

PIPE LINE RUNS.

At Glasgow Depot Total Twelve Cars For Last Month, With New Pipe Line Coming.

If anyone has doubt as to Glasgow being an oil center, a visit to the railroad yards near town will convince him to the contrary.

During the month of March 12 cars of oil were shipped from Glasgow—a total of 78,000 gallons of oil for the month.

Three pipe lines are daily pouring oil to the tanks for distribution and shipment.

A fourth pipe line is in course of construction and, despite the low price of oil, runs will be made there from at an early date.

All these pipe line runs were made during a period when oil was at its lowest price level, and with an improved market and a new line running Glasgow ought to take on new life as an oil center.—Glasgow Times

Public Sale.

On Saturday, May 7th, there will be a public sale at my home, at which time I will sell many valuable articles in the way of furniture, etc etc

Old Mormon Church at Sulphur Well.

Snuggling among the hill and woods of Metcalfe county in the Sulphur Well section is probably the only Mormon church in the State that is actively maintained and kept going.

It was established many years ago by devotees from Utah, and in the course of a few years a substantial following developed among the people of the community, with services being held at stated periods during the year.

Many followers of Mormonism—both men and women—are said to have left Metcalfe county for Salt Lake City to make their homes in the years gone by.—Glasgow Times.

Notice.

All persons having accounts against the estate of Miss Eliza Todd, deceased will present them to me properly proven by the 1st day of May 1921.

L. C. Winfrey, Executor, 25-3t.

Removed to Columbia.

Mr. C. H. Campbell, who was born and reared near Creelsboro, and was one of the best and most enterprising citizens of Russell county, removed with his wife and two children to near Columbia last Wednesday. He is occupying the Henry Mullinix residence near the Fair Grounds, which he purchased some weeks ago. Mr. Campbell and family are valuable acquisitions to this community and we are glad that they have come to live among us. Mr. Campbell owns a great deal of territory in the Creelsboro Oil Field, and he informs the News that a good well was brought in last week.

Special Notice.

I have gone out of business, and all persons indebted to me are requested to pay at once. My business must be settled.

I also have two touring Ford cars, one almost new, which are for sale, at a bargain.

James Hoy.

Well-Known Colored Man Dead.

Bram Jones, a colored man who was in very good circumstances, died at his home, near Gadberry, last Wednesday night. He was about sixty-five years old and was very industrious. As a result of his industry he left a farm and other property amounting to a very good estate. He is survived by his wife and several children.

The Presbytery.

The people of Columbia have reason to congratulate themselves on the meeting of Transylvania Presbytery held here last week, commencing Friday evening, as it gave them an opportunity to hear sermons by a number of able divines of the Presbyterian church. The following named ministers of the Presbytery were present: Rev. J. Q. A. McDowell, D. D., Danville, Rev. M. M. Allen, D. D., Danville, Rev. W. A. Ganfield, D. D., Danville, Rev. F. E. Moore, Richmond, Rev. D. B. Hart, Greensburg, Rev. M. S. Weber, Lebanon, Rev. H. S. Hudson, Lancaster, Rev. L. Waggener, Danville, Rev. J. T. Lloyd, Columbia. Elders present were: S. M. Harbison, Danville, J. R. Ward, Greensburg, W. T. Dohoney, Union, H. C. Baker, Columbia, and G. W. Preston Caldwell. In addition to the ministers above named, Rev. C. W. Welch, D. D., Louisville, and Rev. F. J. Cheek, D. D., of Danville, State Synodical Superintendent, were present, the former preaching the opening sermon Friday evening, and the latter preaching Saturday evening.

At the morning service Sunday morning, the pulpit was occupied by Dr. Ganfield, president of Center College, and at the evening service by Dr. McDowell, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, of Danville.

Each of these services was attended by a large and appreciative audiences. At the Saturday evening services Mrs. Hamlett sang a solo and at the Sunday morning service Miss Eva Walker sang.

In addition to the ordinary routine work of the Presbytery, Rev. F. E. Moore and Elder J. R. Ward were appointed delegates to the General Assembly of the church, which meets at Winona Lake, Ind., next month.

At its conclusion the Presbytery adopted the following resolution:

Now, that the Spring meeting of Transylvania Presbytery is about to come to a close, when the visiting Ministers and Elders must soon leave the beautiful little city of Columbia to return to their respective fields of labor, we earnestly desire before we depart to express to you of the Columbia church and community our very deep appreciation for all you have been to us and have done for us during our short sojourn with you; for your very generous and bountiful hospitality in your homes and for your exceedingly hearty support in the large audiences present to help and inspire in our popular meetings. The genuine and sincere Christian fellowship we have enjoyed more than can be stated in a few words; and shall be a blessing and benediction to us in the days and months to come. We pray for you as a church of the Great American Christian church a peculiar and special blessing, and upon your city and whole community we beg that God's richest grace may descend and here abide. And humbly intercede for you all that prosperity, joy and "the peace that passeth understanding may be yours, through riches of grace in Christ Jesus the Great Head of the Church.

Rev. H. S. Hudson, Committee on Resolutions.

Accidentally Hurt.

Last Tuesday, about the noon hour, Allen Frankum and Milton Murrell, two small boys, were coming down the Lindsey-Wilson hill on one bicycle. When about half way down the machine gave way, and the boys were violently thrown to the ground. Milton was considerably bruised about the head, knees and elbows. He was carried home and his wounds dressed, and at this time he is about well.

OIL NEWS.

[BY E. T. KEMPER.]

Increased activities in development work is seen all over this territory, inquiries are pouring in from many different sections, and the outlook for big things being pulled off here in oil circles at no distant date were never more promising than at the present time.

A number of oil men have visited this section within the past two weeks, and many others are headed this way for the purpose of making surveys of the fields with a view to becoming interested in development work here soon.

One of the most prominent citizens of Columbia, who spent several days in Cumberland county lately, a man who has no interest whatever in the oil business, volunteers the information that there is no question but that the Bakerton field, which he had the pleasure of visiting while on his trip, is not only a promising field at present but that it is destined to prove to be a wonder. Ten holes drilled there, resulting in ten good wells, is not a bad start for the field.

The Day Oil Company, drilling on the Granville Williams farm, near Creelsboro, have brought in well No. 1 at a depth of 240 feet. This well started flowing at seven feet in the sand, and at last reports oil was freely flowing and running into Cumberland River, more than a mile away. All reports credit this well as the best well ever drilled in that field.

The Wood Oil Company, operating on the farm of Cummings Brothers, adjoining property of the Beacon Oil Syndicate, at Creelsboro, have a showing for a nice well in the shallow sand but they intend to drill down to the Pencil Cave where they expect to strike the Trenton sand.

Other good wells reported from the Creelsboro field within the past ten days are, one on the West Fork of Indian Creek just over the Clinton County line, with 19 feet of oil sand; one on the W. A. Armstrong farm, located on the North side of Cumberland River; one by the Carnahan Oil Company on the Cosby Coffey farm. The latter is reported in at 270 feet, with 24 feet of sand.

Three new wells are reported from the Brush Creek, Cumberland County field within the past week, as follows: Kash, Walker & Kash, well No. 2 on the Jake Radford farm came in at a depth of about 200 feet, and on the pump registered fifteen barrels in five hours, E. S. Schabelitz Oil Company, Well No. 3 on Clint Keen farm, is in and reported to be a good one; Richardson & Goff, well No. 1 on the J. M. Radford farm, came in good and is being on the pump. Drilling operations there are, Kash, Walker & Kash, well No. 3 on the Jake Radford farm; Schabelitz Oil Company, starting well No. 4, on the Clint Keen tract, arranging to start well No. 1 on the Morrison farm; Richardson & Goff will start well No. 2 on the J. M. Radford tract the latter part of this week; Southern Oil & Refining Company are drilling deeper in well No. 5, located on the Russ Gilbert farm.

The first shipment of oil by the Southern Oil & Refining Company is due to leave Bakerton today. An unlooked for delay in shipment has been due to the inability of the Refining Company to complete transportation arrangements as soon as expected, but they are now fully equipped with their own tow boat and a fleet of barges fitted with steel tanks and they are prepared to handle oil in large quantities and promptly.

Machinery and equipment for the refinery to be built at Creelsboro by the J. E. Carnahan Oil Company, Canton, Ohio, is now on the ground and the work of erecting the plant will be pushed to the limit and completed, as speedily as possible.

Three Stills Destroyed.

Last Thursday Sheriff T. J. Goin and deputy Sheriff Thomas Chandon destroyed three stills two miles south of Greensburg on Green river. They destroyed 700 gallons of beer and about fifteen gallons of whiskey. All three of the stills were operated by the same parties. The owners escaped but it is said that they were recognized by the sheriff who fired upon them as they fled.

Strayed from my premises one black female shoat. Will weigh 130 pounds.

Married at Adairville.

A few days ago Mr. Ed Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Strong Hill, Gradyville, was married to Miss Amy Bell Gilbert, a popular young lady of Adairville, Ky. Immediately after the ceremony the couple left, in a car, for Nashville and other points in the South. They will reside in Adairville. Mr. Hill's Adair county friends send congratulations.

New Goods Received.

Dry goods and notions, Ladies' shoes and slippers Men's and boys' suits, ladies' odd hats. Plenty of odd pants. J. F. Neat.

Mrs. Bettie Hutchison, who lives at Coburg, was seventy-two years old last Tuesday. The event was celebrated last Sunday, nearly all her children being present. The celebration was wholly a surprise to Mrs. Hutchison, as she did not know that her children were to honor her with their presence, bringing a magnificent dinner.

The VALLEY of the GIANTS

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Pioneer in the California redwood region, John Cardigan, at forty-seven, is the leading citizen of Sequoia, owner of mills, ships, and many acres of timber, a widower after three years of married life, and father of two-day-old Bryce Cardigan.

CHAPTER II.—At fourteen Bryce makes the acquaintance of Shirley Sumner, a visitor to Sequoia, and his junior by a few years. Together they visit the Valley of the Giants, sacred to John Cardigan and his son as the burial place of Bryce's mother, and part with mutual regret.

CHAPTER III.—While Bryce is at college John Cardigan meets with heavy business losses and for the first time views the future with uncertainty.

CHAPTER IV.—After graduation from college, and a trip abroad, Bryce Cardigan comes home. On the train he meets Shirley Sumner, on her way to Sequoia to make her home there with her uncle, Col. Pennington. Bryce learns that his father's eyesight has failed and that Col. Pennington is seeking to take advantage of the old man's business misfortunes.

CHAPTER V.—In the Valley of the Giants young Cardigan finds a tree felled directly across his mother's grave. Indications are that it was cut down to secure the burial, and evidence seems to show that Pennington and his woods-boss, Jules Rondeau, are implicated in the outrage.

CHAPTER VI.—Dining with Col. Pennington and his niece, Bryce finds the room paneled with redwood burl, confirming his suspicions of Pennington's guilt. In a diplomatic way, unpersuaded by Shirley, the two men declare war.

CHAPTER VII.—Pennington refuses to renew his logging contract with the Cardigans, believing his action means bankruptcy for the latter. Bryce forces Rondeau to confess he felled the tree in the Valley of the Giants, at Pennington's order. After punishing the man, Bryce orders Bryce to leave her and forget their friendship. He leaves, but refuses to accept dismissal.

CHAPTER VIII.—Returning to Sequoia, the train on which Shirley, her uncle, and Bryce are traveling, breaks away from the locomotive, and Bryce, who could have escaped, at the risk of his life cuts out the caboose and saves them from certain death, being painfully injured in doing so.

CHAPTER IX.—Molra McTavish, childhood friend of Bryce and employed in his office, makes Shirley's acquaintance and the two become friends. Needing money badly, John Cardigan offers to sell Pennington the Valley of the Giants, but the Colonel, considering the property must be sold through the bankruptcy of his enemies, contemptuously refuses. Unknown to her uncle, Shirley buys the Valley and the Cardigans have a new lease of business life. They interest capital and decide on a scheme to parallel Pennington's logging railroad.

CHAPTER X.—Buchanan Ogilvy, railroad contractor and Bryce's college friend, is decided on by the Cardigans to build the man to figure as the builder of the proposed railroad. Bryce goes to San Francisco to meet him.

CHAPTER XI.—Ogilvy ostentatiously begins work of surveying for the line, which is announced as a proposed through route. Pennington, vaguely alarmed, decides to block operations by making it impossible to secure a franchise for the line through Sequoia. In this he plans to enlist the aid of the mayor, Poundstone.

CHAPTER XII.—"Buck" Ogilvy, as builder of the projected Northern California and Oregon railroad, meets Molra McTavish and is much impressed. Bryce and his father make plans for securing a franchise for the line from the city council.

CHAPTER XIII.—Ogilvy, in a business interview, favorably impresses the Mayor, and later engages that official's son as attorney for the new road. Through him they obtain the temporary franchise. Pennington, finally convinced that the Cardigan interests are behind the scheme, gets to work to balk them.

CHAPTER XIV.—Pennington refuses Bryce the use of a locomotive and trucks to move equipment for laying a switch, and Bryce and Ogilvy plan to steal both and during the night put in a crossing cutting Pennington's tracks in the city. Pennington bribes Mayor Poundstone to ignore the temporary franchise granted and to refuse a permanent one. That night Pennington hears the Cardigan tracklaying crew at work and hurries to the spot.

CHAPTER XV.—Bryce and Ogilvy disregard Pennington's threatened remonstrances and continue work, but the Colonel gets word to the Mayor and also employs a desperado to shoot Bryce. Bryce is wounded. Work on the track is stopped by the chief of police. Shirley accuses her uncle of conniving at the murder of Bryce, and the Colonel leaves for San Francisco to safeguard his interests through further legal proceedings.

CHAPTER XVII.

Events followed each other with refreshing rapidity. While the crew of the big locomotive on the crossing busied themselves getting up steam, Sexton and Jules Rondeau toiled at the loading of the discarded boiler and heavy castings aboard two flat cars. By utilizing the steel derrick on the company's wrecking car, this task was completed by noon, and after luncheon the mogul backed up the main line past the switch into the Laguna Grande yards; whereupon the switch engine kicked the two flat cars and the wrecking car out of the yard and down to the crossing, where the obstructions were promptly unloaded. The police watched the operation with alert interest but forbore to interfere in this high-handed closing of a public thoroughfare.

To Sexton's annoyance and secret apprehension, Bryce Cardigan and Buck Ogilvy promptly appeared on the scene, both very cheerful and lavish with expert advice as to the best method of expediting the job in hand. To Bryce's surprise Jules Rondeau appeared to take secret enjoyment of this good-natured chaffing of the Laguna Grande manager. Occasionally he eyed Bryce curiously but without animus, and presently he flashed the latter a lightning wink, as if to say: "What a fool Sexton is to oppose you!"

"Well, Rondeau," Bryce hailed the woods-boss cheerfully, "I see you have quite recovered from that working over I gave you some time ago. No hard feelings, I trust. I shouldn't care to have that job do over again. You're a tough one."

"By gar, she don't pay for have hard feelings wiz you, m'sieur," Rondeau answered bluntly. "We have one fine fight, but—he shrugged—"I don't want some more." He approached Bryce and lowered his voice. "For one month I am no good all ze tam. We don't fight some more, m'sieur. And I have feel ashamed for dose Black Minorca feller. Always wiz him eet is ze knife or ze club—and now eet is ze rifle. Cochon! When I fight, I fight wiz what le bon Dieu give me."

"You appear to have a certain code, after all," Bryce laughed. "I am inclined to like you for it. You're sporty in your way, you tremendous scoundrel!"

"Mebbeso," Rondeau suggested hopefully, "M'sieur likes me for woods-boss?"

"Why, what's the matter with Pennington? Is he tired of you?"

The color mounted slowly to the woods bully's swarthy cheek. "Mademoiselle Summair, he's tell me pretty soon he's goin' to be boss of Laguna Grande an' stop all thees fight. An' w'en Mademoiselle, he is in the saddle, good-bye Jules Rondeau. Thees country—I like him. I feel sad, M'sieur, to leave dose beeg trees." He paused, looking rather wistfully at Bryce. "I am fine woods-boss for somebody," he suggested hopefully.

"You think Miss Sumner dislikes you then, Rondeau?"

"I don't theenk, I know," he sighed; his huge body seemed to droop. "I am out of zee good luck now," he murmured bitterly. "Everybody, she hate Jules Rondeau." Again he sighed. "Dose beeg trees! In Quebec we have none. In zee woods, M'sieur, I feel—here!" And he laid his great calloused, hairy hand over his heart.

"W'en I Cut Your Beeg Trees, M'sieur, I Feel Like Hell."

"W'en I cut your beeg trees, M'sieur, I feel like hell."

"That infernal gorilla of a man is a poet," Buck Ogilvy declared. "I'd think twice before I let him get out of the country, Bryce."

"Whose salt he eats, his song he sings," quoth Bryce. "I forgive you, Rondeau, and when I need a woods-boss like you, I'll send for you."

At eleven o'clock Saturday night the deputy United States marshal arrived in Sequoia. Upon the advice of Buck Ogilvy, however, he made no attempt at service that night, notwithstanding the fact that Jules Rondeau and his bullies still guarded the crossing. At eight o'clock Sunday morning, however, Bryce Cardigan drove him down to the crossing. Buck Ogilvy was already there with his men, superintending erection of a huge derrick close to the heap of obstructions placed on the crossing. Sexton was watching him uneasily, and flushed as Ogilvy pointed him out to the marshal.

"There's your meat, marshal," he announced. The marshal approached and extended toward Sexton a copy of the restraining order. The latter struck it aside and refused to accept it—whereupon the deputy marshal tapped him on the shoulder with it. "Tag! You're out of the game, my friend," he said pleasantly.

As the document fluttered to Sexton's feet, the latter turned to Jules Rondeau. "I can no longer take charge here, Rondeau," he explained. "I am forbidden to interfere."

"Jules Rondeau can do ze job," the woods-boss replied easily. "Ze law, she have not restrain' me. I guess, mebbeso, you don't dare dose theengs away, eh, M'sieur Cardigan. Myself, I lak see."

The deputy marshal handed Rondeau a paper, at the same time showing his badge. "You're out, too, my friend," he laughed. "Don't be foolish to try to buck the law. If you do, I shall have to place a nice little pair of handcuffs on you and throw you in jail—and if you resist arrest, I shall have to shoot you. I have one of these little restraining orders for every able-bodied man in the Laguna Grande Lumber company's employ—thanks to Mr. Ogilvy's foresight; so it is useless to try to beat this game on a technicality."

Sexton, who still lingered, made a gesture of surrender. "Dismiss your crew, Rondeau," he ordered. "We're whipped to a frazzle."

A gleam of pleasure, not unmixed with triumph, lighted the dark eyes of the French-Canadian. "I tol' M'sieur Sexton she cannot fight M'sieur Cardigan and win," he said simply. "Now mebbe he believe that Jules Rondeau know something."

"Shut up," Sexton roared petulantly. Rondeau shrugged contemptuously, turned, and with a sweep of his great arm indicated to his men that they were to go; then, without a backward glance to see that they followed, the woods boss strode away in the direction of the Laguna Grande mill. Arrived at the mill office, he entered, took down the telephone, and called up Shirley Sumner.

"Mademoiselle," he said, "Jules Rondeau speaks to you. I have for you zee good news. Bryce Cardigan, she puts in the crossing—today. One man of the law she comes from San Francisco with papers, and M'sieur Sexton say to me: 'Rondeau, we are whelp. Deesmess your men.' So I have deesmess doze men, and now I deesmess myself. Mebbeso blimey I go to work for M'sieur Cardigan. For Mademoiselle I have no weesh to make trouble to fire me. I queet. I will not fight dose dirty fight some more. Au revoir, mademoiselle. I go."

And without further ado he hung up.

"What's this, what's this?" Sexton demanded. "You're going to quit? Nonsense, Rondeau, nonsense!"

"I will have my time, M'sieur," said Jules Rondeau. "I go to work for a man. Mebbeso I am not woods boss for heem, but—I work."

"You'll have to wait until the Colonel returns, Rondeau."

"I will have my time," said Jules Rondeau patiently.

"Then you'll wait till pay day for it, Rondeau. You know our rules. Any man who quits without notice waits until the regular pay day for his money."

Jules advanced until he towered directly over the manager. "I tol' M'sieur I would have my time," he repeated once more. "Is M'sieur deaf in ze ears?" He raised his right hand, much as a bear raises its paw; his blunt fingers worked a little and there was a smoldering fire in his dark eyes.

Without further protest Sexton opened the safe, counted out the wages due, and took Rondeau's receipt.

"Thank you, M'sieur," the woods boss growled as he swept the coin into his pocket. "Now, I work for M'sieur Cardigan; so, M'sieur, I will have zee switch engine weeth two flat cars and zee wrecking car. Doze dam trash on zee crossing—M'sieur Cardigan does not like, and by gar, I take heem away. You understand. M'sieur? I am Jules Rondeau, and I work for M'sieur Cardigan. La la, M'sieur!" The great hand closed over Sexton's collar. "Not zee pistol—no, not for Jules Rondeau."

Quite as easily as a woman dresses, a baby, he gagged Sexton with Sexton's own handkerchief, laid him gently on the floor and departed, locking the door behind him and taking the key. At the corner of the building where the telephone line entered the office, he paused, jerked once at the wire, and passed on, leaving the broken ends on the ground.

In the roundhouse he found the switch engine crew on duty, waiting for steam in the boiler. The withdrawal of both locomotives, brief as had been their absence, had caused a glut of logs at the Laguna Grande landings, and Sexton was catching up with the traffic by sending the switch engine crew out for one trainload, even though it was Sunday. The crew had been used to receiving orders from Rondeau, and moreover they were not aware of his recent action; hence at his command they ran the switch engine out of the roundhouse, coupled up the two flat cars and the wrecking car, and backed down to the crossing. Upon arrival, Jules Rondeau leaned out of the cab window and hailed Bryce. "M'sieur," he said, "do not bozzer to make zee derrick I have here zee wrecking car—all you need; pretty soon we lift him off zee crossing, I tell you, eh, M'sieur Cardigan?"

Bryce stepped over to the switch engine and looked up at his late enemy. "By whose orders is this train here?" he queried.

"Mine," Rondeau quickly answered. "M'sieur Sexton I have tie like one leetle pig and lock her in her office. I work now for M'sieur."

And he did. He waited not for a confirmation from his new master but proceeded to direct operations like the born driver and leader of men that he was. With his late employer's gear he fastened to the old castings and the boiler, lifted them with the derrick on the wrecking car, and swung them up and around onto the flat cars. By the middle of the afternoon the crossing was once more clear. Then the Cardigan crew fell upon it while Jules Rondeau ran the train back to the Laguna Grande yards, dismissed his crew, returned to the mill office, and released the manager.

"You'll pay through the nose for this, you scoundrel," Sexton whimpered. "I'll fix you, you traitor." "You feex nothing, M'sieur Sexton," Rondeau replied imperturbably. "Who is witness Jules Rondeau tie you up? Somebody see you, no? I guess you don't feex me. Sacre! I guess you don't try."

CHAPTER XVIII.

Colonel Pennington's discovery at San Francisco that Bryce Cardigan had stolen his thunder and turned the bolt upon him, was the hardest blow Seth Pennington could remember having received throughout his thirty-odd years of give and take. He was too old and experienced a campaigner, however, to permit a futile rage to cloud his reason; he prided himself upon being a foeman worthy of any man's steel.

On Tuesday he returned to Sequoia. Sexton related to him in detail the events which had transpired since his departure, but elicited nothing more than a noncommittal grunt.

"There is one more matter, sir, which will doubtless be of interest to you," Sexton continued apologetically. "Miss Sumner called me on the telephone yesterday and instructed me formally to notify the board of directors of the Laguna Grande company of a special meeting of the board, to be held here at two o'clock this afternoon. In view of the impossibility of communicating with you while you were en route, I conformed to her wishes. Our by-laws, as you know, stipulate that no meeting of the board shall be called without formal written notice to each director mailed twenty-four hours previously."

"What the devil do you mean, Sexton, by conforming to her wishes? Miss Sumner is not a director of this company," Pennington's voice was harsh and trembled apprehensively.

"Miss Sumner controls forty per cent of the Laguna Grande stock, sir. I took that into consideration."

"You lie!" Pennington all but screamed. "You took into consideration your job as secretary and general manager. Damnation!"

He rose and commenced pacing up and down his office. Suddenly he paused. Sexton still stood beside his desk, watching him respectfully. "You fool!" he snarled. "Get out of here and leave me alone."

Sexton departed promptly, glancing at his watch as he did so. It lacked five minutes of two. He passed Shirley Sumner in the general office.

"Shirley," Pennington began in a hoarse voice as he entered his office, "what is the meaning of this directors' meeting you have requested?"

"Be seated, Uncle Seth," the girl answered quietly. "If you will only be quiet and reasonable, perhaps we can dispense with this directors' meeting which appears to frighten you so."

He sat down promptly, a look of relief on his face.

"I scarcely know how to begin, Uncle Seth," Shirley commenced sadly. "It hurts me terribly to be forced to hurt you, but there doesn't appear to be any other way out of it. I cannot trust you to manage my financial affairs in the future—this for a number of reasons, the principal one being—

"Young Cardigan," he interrupted in a low voice.

"I suppose so," she answered, "although I think until very recently that it was those sixteen townships of red cedar—that crown grant in British Columbia in which you induced me to invest four hundred thousand dollars. You will remember that you purchased that timber for me from the Caribou Timber company, Limited. You said it was an unparalleled investment. Quite recently I learned—no matter how—that you were the principal owner of the Caribou Timber company, Limited! Smart as you are, somebody swindled you with that red cedar. It was a wonderful stand of timber—so read the cruiser's report—but fifty per cent of it, despite its green and flourishing appearance, is hollow-butted! And the remaining fifty per cent of sound timber cannot be logged unless the rotten timber is logged also and gotten out of the way. And I am informed that logging it spells bankruptcy."

She gazed at him steadily, but without malice; his face crimsoned and then paled; presently his glance sought the carpet. While he struggled to formulate a verbal defense against her accusation Shirley continued: "You had erected a huge sawmill and built and equipped a logging road before you discovered you had been swindled. So, in order to save as much as possible from the wreck, you decided to unload your white elephant on somebody else. I was the readiest

IS YOUR HEALTH GRADUALLY SLIPPING?

Interesting Experience of a Texas Lady Who Declares That if More Women Knew About Cardui They Would Be Spared Much Sickness and Worry.

Navasota, Texas.—Mrs. W. M. Peden, of this place, relates the following interesting account of how she recovered her strength, having realized that she was actually losing her health:

"Health is the greatest thing in the world, and when you feel that gradually slipping away from you, you certainly sit up and take notice. That is what I did some time ago when I found myself in a very nervous, run-down condition of health. I was so tired and felt so lifeless I could hardly go at all."

"I was just no account for work. I would get a bucket of water and would feel so weak I would have to set it down before I felt like I could lift it to the shelf. In this condition, of course, to do even my housework was a task almost impossible to accomplish."

"I was . . . nervous and easily upset."

I couldn't rest well at night and was . . . just lifeless.

"I heard of Cardui and after reading I decided I had some female trouble that was pulling me down. I sent for Cardui and began it . . .

"In a very short while after I began the Cardui Home Treatment I saw an improvement and it wasn't long until I was all right—good appetite, splendid rest, and much stronger so that I easily did my housework."

"Later I took a bottle of Cardui as a tonic. I can recommend Cardui and gladly do so, for if more women knew, it would save a great deal of worry and sickness."

The enthusiastic praise of thousands of other women who have found Cardui helpful should convince you that it is worth trying. All druggists sell it.

NINETEEN YEARS IN KANSAS.

[BY R. W. ALLEN.]

The one of most interest to me would be the farm that I had come all the way down here to see and trade for, if it appealed to me and it did appeal to me when I looked over it the next day and traded for it. I will now describe this farm to you. My farm consists of 150 acres. It was originally a farm of 160 acres, but Little Ribe got on a high once upon a time and took off 10 acres of my land and I in turn, took the river or that is 10 acres of the river and it is full of big cat fish, then I have 40 acres in cultivation, on which I grow corn, cotton and cuckie burrs in abundance. Then I have 16 acres in black berry briars yielding fruit sufficient for the town of Winthrop and adjacent vicinity and I have 94 acres in timber yet too be cleared. The timber consists of sweet gum, black gum and cypress principally, but as I did not move down to that country immediately, (till 1 year afterward) I employed me an Arkansan, who was immune from chills, to farm this land for me on the shares. I furnished the teams and tools, team consisting of a broken-legged mule and tools consisting of a Georgia stock. He did all the work and gave one-half the proceeds. I did more to encourage him. I furnished him some razor back hogs to eat the acorns and hickory nuts that were rotting on the ground in great abundance, and also to help him out. I furnished some brindle cows to eat the switch cane which was in great abundance just outside of my fence. Now, this Arkansan was to look after my razor back hogs and my brindle cows for one-half the increase. He did not have to feed them anything but just keep an eye on them and keep them gentle which is the great secret in raising razor back hogs, as he knew better than I did. So I let him choose his way of doing that, and this is the plan that he adopted. He would work until about 4 o'clock p. m., and then he would unhitch his broken-legged mule and take him to the stable and feed him. Then he would go into the shack, (that is what they call little houses where they batch while cultivating the crops down on the river) and reach up in the loft and pull down a Texas cow horn, about 3 feet long, and just step-out of the door of the shack and begin making some of the best music one ever heard. It would sound something like the following: Toot, Toot, Toot, T-o-o-t, T-o-o-t, T-o-o-t. After a while you could hear an old cow low away off in the bottom. She is coming to the horn. He continues as above and directly you hear hogs grunting. They are coming to the horn. He continues as above and you hear an old hound howl. He is coming to the horn. He continues as above tooting his horn and now I will have to explain further that his shack or little house is situated, right on the bank of the river, that is my 10 acres of river. He continues to toot and you hear a splashing in the water just over the bank and look to see what it is and you are greatly surprised at the sight. It is big cat fish. Every thing in Arkansas comes to the horn except mosquitoes.

We will now return to the Sessions Hotel, where Eunice and I had stopped for the 1st night as I told you before. Next morning we were up soon and after we had enjoyed a breakfast of the best menu that Arkansas affords, which consists of razor back bacon, corn bread, sorghum molasses and black coffee, ending up with fried apple pie, made of old fashioned Arkansas sun dried apples, seasoned to suit the taste. Mr. Sessions ordered out his old hoopy and he, Eunice and I started out to see the sights and the first of greatest interest was the farm, which I have afore described, and after spending a little time trying to land some of those big cat fish of which I have spoken. We did land one but not of the biggest size, but was big enough to prove my assertion in regard to them trying to climb the bank coming to the horn because this fish that we landed there and then did not have a scale on his belly having as we concluded worn them all off trying to climb the bank coming to the horn. It being near the noon hour, we returned to the hotel to enjoy a dinner such as none can prepare except an Arkansan lady, and she knowing that we were from Kansas, where vegetables are mostly unknown, had prepared especially a vegetable dinner, consisting of cabbage and kale, turnips, sweet and Irish potatoes, okra, radishes, lettuce, onions, leek and garlic, and many other things too tedious to mention and of course this dinner was enjoyed very much for us not be used to vegetables and after dinner was over, we started out to explore other fields, all the while carrying our kodak and snappy pictures where opportunity was favorable and after spending that day (1st day), and the next taking in everything of special interest, we decided to pack our grip and start for Kansas, but the night before we started for Kansas (that being the 3rd night in Arkansas) I heard of a big "nigger meeting" there in Winthrop, proposed to my daughter, Eunice, that I wanted her to go with me to the nigger meeting as I many times back in my boyhood days in old Kentucky had been to nigger meetings and knowing the effect that the spirit frequently had on the "nigger" during their big revivals would be of much interest to her, she not having had the opportunities as I had of attending nigger meetings, she consented to go. Supper being over and our grips packed and nothing else on our minds, we walked down to the nigger meeting house and being a little late the crowd having all gathered earlier than we, occupied most all the pews. There was an empty seat just on the right of the door. We occupied it for 2 good reasons. One was as above stated and the other was from choice, knowing from past experience the effect the spirit had on those niggers, that it would be safer to be close to the door. Everything being ready the preacher arose and sang a new song as follows: "I am bound for the Promise Land" and after the singing which was done with "the spirit and the understanding" the preacher arose and read his text. "I forget now just what it was, but if memory serves me right, it was something like this "Every tub stands on its own bottom." He began his discourse with a few preliminary remarks and then he launched out into one of the biggest discussions that I ever had heard from a nigger or white man. He carried his audience from the garden of Eden to Paradise restored, showing to his audience conclusively that man is responsible for his own sins.

Revival Closes.

Rev. W. G. Montgomery, pastor of the First Christian church, closed a very successful ten days revival meeting last night. He conducted the services without the aid of an evangelist from elsewhere and the meetings resulted in a general spiritual awakening of the entire membership of the local congregation and thirty-eight souls were added to the church, many of whom came confessing their Savior, others placing their membership in the local church. Rev. Montgomery is a very forceful speaker, sticking to the plain teachings of the scriptures and refraining from being antagonistic as to the teachings of other denominational bodies, except where it is necessary to speak the truth. The meetings were largely attended at every gathering and an unusual interest was manifested.—Commonwealth, Somerset.

Mr. McChesney's Candidacy.

The announcement by H. V. McChesney, of the Frankfort bar, of his intention to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the lower branch of the Kentucky Legislature from the Frankfort district, is an event of Statewide importance, and may mean that the leaders of the Democratic party in the State are to succeed in their plans of sending to the State Legislature next year the best representation in many years.

Mr. McChesney will, we learn, probably be nominated without opposition, and, as the district is overwhelmingly Democratic, will certainly be elected. In point of ability, of character and experience in public affairs he is eminently qualified for this work, and the fact that he is willing to make the necessary sacrifices to do this work is highly encouraging.

The Democratic party is now in opposition both in the nation and in the State. To re-establish itself it is necessary for it to put forward the best men available. McChesney's nomination will be a fine beginning. If twenty such men are nominated this year not only will the Democratic candidates carry the State with ease, but the party may be assured of such wise handling of State problems at Frankfort that will make the election of a Democratic Governor two years hence an easy matter.—Louisville Post.

When the Democratic committeemen are chosen throughout the State it is believed that one Democratic woman as well as a man will be named for each precinct.

Eligibles for the Derby are already arriving at Churchill Downs, and the Spring races which will start in next month, promises to be the most interesting meeting for many years.

Al Field, the noted minstrel, died a few days. His business was to make happy audiences. He had a tender heart and great love for his fellowman. May his present abiding place be the happiest.

Col. Eph Lillard, a well-known Kentucky Democratic politician, died in Chicago last Wednesday. His remains were shipped to Frankfort for burial. He was one of Senator Goebel's body guards at the time the latter was shot.

Eld. Wm. Stanley, who was the father of Senator A. O. Stanley, died suddenly at Frankfort last Friday, the 8th. He was 89 years old. He served in the Confederate army, and since the civil war was a preacher in the Christian Church. He filled the pulpit in Columbia upon several different occasions.

People in the rural settlements, who take the daily papers would be glad if those publications cease publishing pictures of half dressed girls. The pictures do not add beauty to the girls, but they bring shame to the faces of high minded decent women. No girl adds anything to her standing and beauty by dressing in tight and sticking her picture in a newspaper.

Since last Wednesday a reward of one thousand dollars will be paid by the Kentucky Bankers Association for the arrest and conviction of each person robbing or attempting to rob a bank. If a robber is killed while attempting to lute a bank the reward will be paid. For safe blowers a reward of $750 is offered. Four hundred and twenty banks in Kentucky have signed to pay $2.50 for the above purposes.

Hon. H. V. McChesney, an attorney at Frankfort, a Democrat known over the State, has announced his candidacy to represent Franklin county in the next Legislature. If men of Mr. McChesney's standing and ability will get in the fight all over the State, there will be beneficial work done at Frankfort next winter. In the coming race for the Legislature and for the State Senate, only the best of men should be recognized.

Gov. E. P. Morrow while addressing the people of Kentucky during his campaign for election, scored the Democratic party, then in power, on account of the high tax rate. Since Mr. Morrow has been in, the raise on assessments over the State amount to more than eighty million dollars. When this announcement was made the woodchuck flew high, and as he sailed through the air he could be heard to sing, "There is Trouble in the Land."

No candidate to represent Adair and Taylor counties in the next Legislature has as yet announced. A man of ability and standing should announce. If a Republican runs Taylor county is entitled to that candidate; if a Democrat should run he could come from either county. The reason that Taylor is entitled to the Republican candidate is, that Hon. T. R. Stuts, of this county, was the last Representative and Taylor county Republicans did not oppose him.

A special from Washington says: President Harding is not committed to any definite program in regard to a congressional declaration to declare a state of war with Germany at an end. While the president voted for the Knox resolution when he was a member of the senate and spoke favorably in regard to it in his address of acceptance, he is understood to feel there is no occasion for precipitate action at this time. The President's views in regard to the peace program are expected to be made known at the opening of the new congress, which the executive may address in person. In the meantime it has become known that the president and his advisors are growing more convinced there is no practical way to consider the Versailles covenant.

The Democrats of Casey, Lincoln, Boyle and Garrard are beseeching Hon. Geo. E. Stone, of Danville, to become a candidate for the State Senate. We hope and trust that he will consent to make the race, as he is a man of ability, a very superior lawyer and popular throughout the district. Casey is the largest Republican county in the district, and Mr. Stone lived at Liberty a number of years, and we believe that a large number of the G. O. P. of that county would support him, knowing him to be a gentleman of worth and standing. He is one of the best speakers in the State, a man of great force. While the district is close, if Mr. Stone should become a candidate we feel sure that he would be elected. Should he go to the Senate no representative would command more attention and respect. Men of Mr. Stone's ability and character will be needed in the next Senate.

SEEING THE PRESIDENT.

Mr. Harding began his administration with the theory that he would see everyone who wanted to see him. The experiment broke down. Those who called to see the President without any real business took up so much of the official day that dozens of others, whom the President should have seen, did not get near him. The system used during the two administrations of President Wilson will be adopted almost without a change. The caller at the White House must state his business with the latter's secretary, or one of his assistants, and those officials will be judges, subject to reference in special cases to the President himself, as to whether the callers will be admitted.

Of course there are objections to this plan. An officer so hedged about may not learn things he would very much like to know. But even to this there is a fairly satisfactory answer. We often hear that the late Czar of Russia was a well-meaning man, who was kept in ignorance by his ministers of abuses he would have remedied had he known the facts. But in Russia in those days, as now, there was a rigid press censorship, and the man who found himself prevented by the Czar's ministers from telling his troubles to the Czar, could not obtain a hearing in the press. But it is different in America. Let a man with an important State matter fail to secure an audience with the President, and he will find no difficulty in communicating with the President, and the public, too, through the medium of the press.—Louisville Post.

Gradyville.

Quite a nice lot of fish were caught out of Russell Creek by our boys this week.

Our peach crop, this season is a failure almost.

Prospects fine for a good wheat crop.

It is reported that the tobacco plants in this section will be short.

Mr. Clarence Wheeler started for McGregor, Texas, the first of the week with a view of making it his home.

Messrs. Rodgers & Keltner, of Keltner, were in this community a few days ago, looking after and buying tobacco, paying from 3½c to 8c per lb.

Mr. D. Blades, one of our up-to-date farmers, is feeding a nice bunch of hogs preparatory for the spring market.

James Moss spent a few days in Columbia with his grandfather, G. T. Flowers, last week.

Uncle Robert O. Keltner and Uncle Charlie Yates, two of our oldest citizens, keep up their usual health. Both are feeble.

Dr. Garnett Miller left us a few days ago for Moody, Texas. He will wind up his outstanding business as rapidly as possible, and will return to this place and locate permanently.

We are glad to note that Miss Hattie Lee Willis, who has been confined to her room for several days with a complication of troubles, is improving at this time.

Quite a number of our citizens attended fiscal court at Columbia. This end of the county is deeply interested in the completion of the new pike from this place to Columbia and we all hope to see it completed during this year.

Messrs. McKinley Sneed, Lawrence Moore, Robert Moore and Gilbert Roach, all of Weed, passed through here one day last week, headed for New Castle, Ind., to grow up with the country. Success to you boys.

Mr. O. B. Estes was called to the bedside of his nephew, young Mr. Estes, at Sulphur Well, one day this week, who is in a critical condition.

Mr. W. P. Flowers is making some grand improvements on his place in our city, which adds greatly to the looks of his property as well as enhances the value.

Mr. W. E. Hunter and brother are on the market for a bunch of stock cattle. Mr. Hunter spent a day or so in the community of Keltner this week looking after some.

We are certainly glad to report that Mr. J. A. Keen, who has been in delicate health for a number of years, has gained his strength so that he is able to see after his farm work.

Mr. Herbert Dohoney, of Columbia, passed through here the first of the week en route for Edmonton looking after some unfinished business.

We are proud to make mention through the News, at this time that there is the best lot of nice fat young lambs that has been here for some years.

We are having plenty of candidates now days. We take it from what we can hear on the outside, from some of our most prominent Republicans talk that their ticket in this part of Adair is all stated and elected, but for the benefit of those who will be defeated we will not mention the successful one at this time.

Mr. W. C. Hill, of Edmonton, is spending a few days with relatives and friends in this community at this time.

Our farmers during the past few days of warm weather have made good use of their time. Some are done turning the soil for corn and are now preparing the ground for planting. Owing to the scarcity of plants and the low price of tobacco, we take it that there will not be one-half of the acreage set in this community. We must say here that there is the large part of last years crop of the weed in this community at this time unsold. It is some of our best tobacco if not sold in the near future this tobacco will be put on the Louisville market.

More Humor Than News.

Some newspapers claim that they print all the news that's fit to print, while others claim that if its news it appears in their publications. Perhaps some of the statements made are a little extravagant, but our newspapers surely do round up lots of interesting news. Some of the most important stories appear under scare heads in the columns of metropolitan dailies, but many of the little items culled from the pages of country papers shine with brilliancy and humor. The column conductors of the press of the United States have found some spicy specimens have found pers here and there. Some of these items have been screened with success in "Topics of the Day" films at popular theaters.

Our readers will surely find a smile or two, and perhaps some laughs, at the nifty news items which the Daily Register bulletins below:

Class in swimming for married couples will be organized Monday. Ladies' suits furnished if Baltimore Sun.

The United States Geological Survey urges a campaign of education to induce the American people to order their coal in season. The coal companies, this authority says, are quite unable to maintain the necessary places of storage so as to be able to serve everyone with coal during the thirty days before the winter closes in. The demand is excessive at this season, and prices soar; whereas it would be possible to maintain steady production in the mines if domestic consumers would fill their coal bins in the early spring after the ending of a winter. This has been often said before, and its truth is obvious. But the American people are not easy to accept suggestions of this kind.—Evening Post.

Dr. O. S. Dunbar, wife and several children, Lebanon, visited here last Saturday and Sunday. Dr. Dunbar's mother also came down with him.

Mr. E. O. Cheatham, of Amanda, was here the first of the week, and attended the funeral of Mrs. Mary Cheatham Tuesday morning.

Mr. J. N. Sanders, a prominent lawyer of Stanford, and Past Grand Master of the Masonic fraternity of Kentucky, was here Monday, on legal business.

Mr. Fred McLean, who assisted the circuit court clerk of Taylor county, a few days in the Taylor circuit court, returned from Campbellsville last Thursday.

Dr. O. P. Miller, who was confined to his room for two weeks, was able to ride down on the square last Friday. His wife and sister, Miss Mary, are now reported quite sick.

Mr. Ed Yates, wife and two sons, Edgar and Harrol, of Bowling Green, visited Mr. Geo. H. Nell and family a day or two of last week. Mrs. Nell being a sister of Mr. Yates.

Miss Edna Chewing, who once made her home in Columbia, now employed as an accountant in Atlanta, Ga., is visiting at the home of her grandfather, Mr. B. F. Chewing.

Miss Eva Cravens, one of Marion county's popular young educators, and Miss Marie Edelen, attorney for the W. H. Head Distillery Co., accompanied by Mr. Wm. Edelen, made up an auto party who visited at the home of Mr. Byran Montgomery last Sunday.

Mr. C. S. Harris, formerly editor of The Adair County News, now of West Point, Miss., reached Columbia last Saturday, on a visit. He knows nearly every man in Adair county, and no person ever left this community, who had more friends. Everybody gave him a warm hand shake.

Mr. Jas. G. Pruett, of Campbellsville, who was operated on in Louisville some days ago for appendicitis, is reported to be in a dangerous condition. For several years he was in the goods business in his home town. His wife is a daughter of the late Dery Williams, and is a cousin of Mr. J. T. Page, this place.

The Graded and High School will close the 13th of next month.

Rev. Clark, pastor of the Methodist Church, Somerset, has just closed, with the assistance of the local pastor, a very successful meeting at Campbellsville. There were over fifty conversions, thirty-three joining the Methodist Church. The remainder went to other Churches.

Mr. Harry G. Knipp, a native of Metcalfe county, has leased the Columbia Republican, and is now the Editor and publisher of that paper. He is said to be a parietical printer, and will also have charge of the mechanical department. His last work, so he says, was on the Glasgow Times.

Mr. S. E. Shively, who with other citizens of Columbia, purchased a lot of coal stock in Eastern Kentucky, reports that nothing of an encouraging nature comes from the field. About $12,000 were invested by citizens of Columbia, and at this time it looks like the sellers of the stock came here to steal and they did it.

A letter from Mr. E. L. Feese, enclosing check for his subscription, states that himself and family are getting along finely. He is Chief of Police and city tax collector of the town of Berea, and he is a very busy man. He asks that the News be sent to his address regularly, as himself and family can not will do without it.

Dr. C. C. Patteson, a prominent dentist of Campbellsville, received a second stroke of paralysis Monday of last week. Up to last Thursday there had been no change in his condition for the better. He is a brother of Mrs. Lizzie Coffey, who some years ago was a resident of Columbia. Dr. Patteson's friends, of this place, trust that he may recover.

Last week upon the statement of four or five different persons, we announced that Mr. Curt Yarberry's farm was raised, by the Board of Supervisors, $700 more than he gave for it. That statement was incorrect. Mr. Yarberry had listed his farm at $50 per acre, making its valuation at about $9,000; and the board raised the valuation $12,500. Mr. Yarberry paid $15,000 for his farm.

The farming class of Adair county was conspicuously absent from Columbia last week, which evidenced that they were all at work on their farms. We are at all times gratified when the weather is favorable for cultivating the ground, for the reason that when the farmers fail, we all fail. We trust that seasonable weather will besent the farmers this year and that large crops will be gathered.

Word from Mr. John Lee Walker, received a few days ago, was that his wife, who is in a sanitarium at Louisville, was not doing as well as he would like. That the treatment she was receiving kept her sick, and she was very nervous. It is hoped that favorable developments will appear in a very short time. Later Mr. and Mrs. Walker have returned home, and the latter is doing very nicely.

It is expected that a women's auxiliary of the Adair Post American Legion will soon be organized, the mothers, wives, sisters and daughters of all men and women who were in the military or naval service of the United States at any time between April 6, 1917 and November 11, 1918, and who died in line of duty or after honorable discharge and prior to November 11, 1920. While its purposes are similar to those of the American Legion, its activities and results are in many ways even more varied and far-reaching. Will all ladies interested in this splendid organization communicate with the American Legion in Columbia.

Poor Seed Threatened.

Seed corn matured late last fall and unless given special care during the winter will not be as good for seed this spring as it should be, according to members of the Soils and Crops Department of the State College of Agriculture. The specialists are recommending that if farmers have any doubt about the germination or their seed that they give it a thorough test before planting. Complete details concerning the individual ear test by means of the "rag doll" method may be obtained by writing the Experiment Station, Lexington.

Apply Ballard's Snow Liniment to joints that ache. It relieves bone ache, muscle ache and neuralgic pain. Three sizes, 30c, 60c and $1.20 per bottle. Sold by Paul Drug Co.

An Interesting Old Story.

The following story was told Mr. A. J. Stotts by Mr. Butler Wheeler, July 25, 1890. It is doubtless correct: "My father, Archibald Wheeler, cut two trees, a blackoak and a poplar where the court-house in Columbia now stands. They were the first trees cut in Adair county, and out of one of them he caught seven coons. The same night his dogs treed a bear on Pettisfork which was shot and killed by old man 'Billy Hurt.' He further stated that 'my father died in 1864 at the advanced age of 98 years. At the time of his death he was the oldest Mason in Adair county.'

A Home Course in Domestic Science.

"Twenty Lessons in Domestic Science," by Marion Cole Fisher has recently been received by us for review.

This is a complete advanced course in domestic science and home economics boiled down to meet the requirements of the housewife and the student.

The entire course consists of twenty practical lessons—one hundred pages filled with the most valuable information the housewife can possess—heretofore taught only in domestic science schools.

Do you know the relative value of food, which fruits to use for cooking, what purpose salads serve, the correct use of condiments about proper kitchen equipments, about U. S. Government's bulletins, how to reduce the high cost of living, how to promote and protect your own and your families health, how to make housekeeping simpler and more economical and pleasant by utilizing modern science in the home.

This book, we note, is priced at $2.00 per copy and from what we understand it contains a complete $100.00 college course, condensed, and it is practically free to every interested housewife.

Write the Home Economics Department of the Calumet Baking Powder Co., 4100-28 Fillmore St., Chicago, Illinois, for full particulars regarding the book and how to secure it.

Complete Garden Guide.

What is said to be one of the most complete collections of facts and information relative to the home vegetable garden is contained in Circular No. 57, issued by the Extension Division of the State College of Agriculture. The publication includes a number of discussions on various subjects relating to the garden in addition to such features as a table of the first killing frosts in Kentucky, a table showing how, when and where to plant, and discussions relative to the control of garden insects and plant diseases. It may be obtained free by writing the Experiment Station, Lexington.

Adair County News—$1.50

victim. You were the executor of my father's estate—you were my guardian and financial adviser, and so you found it very, very easy to swindle me!"

"I had my back to the wall," he quivered. "I was desperate—and it wasn't at all the bad investment you have been told it is. You had the money—more money than you knew what to do with—and with the proceeds of the sale of those cedar lands, I knew I could make an investment in California redwood and more than retrieve my fortunes—make big money for both of us."

"You might have borrowed the money from me. You know I have never hesitated to join in your enterprises."

"This was too big a deal for you, Shirley. I had vision. I could see incalculable riches in this redwood empire, but it was a tremendous gamble and required twenty millions to swing it at the very start. I dreamed of the control of California redwood; and if you will stand by me, Shirley, I shall yet make my dream come true—and half of it shall be yours. It has always been my intention to buy back from you secretly and at a nice profit to you that Caribou red cedar, and with the acquisition of the Cardigan properties I would have been in position to do so. Why, that Cardigan tract in the San Joaquin which we will buy in within a year for half a million, is worth five millions at least. And by that time I feel certain—in fact, I know—the Northern Pacific will commence building in from the south, from Willits."

"I shall—" he began, but he paused abruptly, as if he had suddenly remembered that fact and not pugnacity was the requirement for the handling of this ticklish situation.

She silenced him with a disdainful gesture. "You shall not smash the Cardigans," she declared firmly. "You are devoid of mercy, of a sense of sportsmanship. Now, then, Uncle Seth, listen to me: You have twenty-four hours in which to make up your mind whether to accept my ultimatum or refuse it. If you refuse, I shall prosecute you for fraud and a betrayal of trust as my father's executor on that red cedar timber deal."

He brightened a trifle. "I'm afraid that would be a long, hard row to hoe, my dear, and of course, I shall have to defend myself."

"In addition," the girl went on quietly, "the county grand jury shall be furnished with a stenographic report of your conversation of Thursday night with Mayor Poundstone. That will not be a long, hard row to hoe, Uncle Seth, for in addition to the stenographer, I have another reliable witness, Judge Moore. Your casual disposal of my sedan as a bribe to the mayor, will be hard to explain and rather amusing. In view of the fact that Bryce Cardigan managed to frighten Mr. Poundstone into returning the sedan while you were away. And if that is not sufficient for my purpose, I have the sworn confession of the Black Minors that you gave him five hundred dollars to kill Bryce Cardigan. Your words, Rondeau, will also swear that you approached him with a proposition to do away with Bryce Cardigan. I think, therefore, that you will readily see how impossible a situation you have managed to create and will not disagree with me when I suggest that it would be better for you to leave this county."

His face had gone gray and haggard. "I can't," he murmured. "I can't leave this great business now. Your own interests in the company render such a course unthinkable. Without my hand at the helm, things will go to smash."

"I'll risk that. I want to get rid of that worthless red cedar timber; so I think you had better buy it back from me at the same figures at which you sold it to me."

"But I haven't the money and I can't borrow it. I—I—"

"I will have the equivalent in stock of the Laguna Grande Lumber company. You will call on Judge Moore to complete the transaction and leave with him your resignation as president of the Laguna Grande Lumber company."

The Colonel raised his glance and bent it upon her in cold appraisal. She met it with firmness, and the thought came to him: "She is a Pennington!" And hope died out in his heart. He began pleading in maudlin fashion for mercy, for compromise. But the girl was obdurate.

"I am showing you more mercy than you deserve—you to whom mercy was ever a sign of weakness, of vacillation. There is a gulf between us, Uncle Seth—a gulf which for a long time I have dimly sensed and which, because of my recent discoveries, has widened until it can no longer be bridged."

He wrung his hands in desperation and slid to his knees before her; with hypocritical endearments he strove to take her hand, but she drew away from him. "Don't touch me," she cried sharply and with a breaking note in her voice. "You planned to kill Bryce Cardigan! And for that—and that alone—I shall never forgive you."

She fled from the office, leaving him cringing and grovelling on the floor. "There will be no directors' meeting, Mr. Sexton," she informed the manager as she passed through the general office. "It is postponed."

That trying interview had wrenched Shirley's soul to a degree that left her faint and weak. She at once set out on a long drive, in the hope that before she turned homeward again she might regain something of her customary composure.

Presently the asphaltum-paved street gave way to a dirt road and terminated abruptly at the boundaries of a field that sloped gently upward—a field studded with huge black redwood stumps, showing dismally through coronets of young redwoods that grew riotously around the base of the departed parent trees. From the fringe of the thicket thus formed, the terminus of an old skid-road showed and a signboard, freshly painted, pointed the way to the Valley of the Giants.

Sayings of Sunday.

Rev. Billy Sunday, who is holding evangelistic meetings at Cincinnati, among other things, according the Cincinnati Post, said:

"Sometimes preachers report the bright side of things, I'm afraid their heads would come off if they didn't."

"I like to see people afraid I will talk religion to them. That's my business—to talk religion. But it's no more my business than it's yours."

"It's not the church's business to educate people. There are thousands of graduates going down to hell. The church's business is to save people from hell."

"Don't think religion is like a cloak; you can put it on Sunday morning and trot out to church, then hang it in the closet the rest of the week."

"I don't believe you're a sane and healthy Christian unless you're doing something to win somebody to God."

"It doesn't require any spiritual life to play cards, run a bazaar or rummage sale, but it does to help somebody to be won to Jesus Christ."

"I think I know the American people well enough to know that 999 out of 1,000 want to be decent. We have some that don't give a picayune; they make more noise than a whale."

"A fellow said to me, 'Bill, you rub the fur the wrong way.'"

"I said, 'I don't. Let the cat turn around.'"

"If a man discovers he is on the wrong train, he doesn't need to be afraid of a hold up or a wreck. Just simply step off and say, 'this is the wrong train,' and get on the right."

"God is no respecter of persons. No matter whom he may be, whether he is a president in the White House or a king on a throne or a president in a bank, God says if he doesn't repent, he will go to hell."

"Oh, heaven is better than hell I am going to heaven. Jesus Christ is better than the devil. I am going to walk arm in arm with Jesus Christ. Health, that's better than sickness. Good eyes, that's better than blindness. Virtue that's better than vice. To pray, that's better than to cuss."

To Hold Pro German Meets.

Pro-German meetings planned for the near future in a number of cities in the East and Middle West will be closely watched by the American Legion, according to national headquarters of the ex-service men's organization. The series of meetings it is understood, will be held for the purposes of protesting against the reported presence of negro colonial troops in the French army of occupation, despite the fact that the troops in question were withdrawn many months ago.

Cities in which the meetings are scheduled are Milwaukee, Omaha, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Louisville, Chicago, Cleveland and New York. It is understood that Dr. Edmund von Mach, who was rebuffed at Washington, D. C., in an effort to enlist the aid of F. W. Galbraith, Jr., Legion national commander, in the project, and George Sylvester Viereck, notorious Boche magazine editor, are among the hyphenated Americans who are sponsoring the movement.

A bulletin from Legion national headquarters, warning state headquarters, to watch for an attempt to revive German propaganda and to create sentiment in America hostile to the allies, has been sent out, and steps have been taken by national officials to influence the Department of Justice to prohibit the meetings.

"A recurrence of German propaganda activity in this country is something the Legion has been watching for some time," said Lemuel Bolles, national adjutant of the Legion. "I feel that the greatest check to a movement of this kind will come from citizens of Teutonic extraction, of whose loyalty and sincerity there can be no doubt. Loyal Americans should know of the sinister efforts to turn sentiment in favor of the nation with which technically we are still at war."

Yapping About Yap.

The little island of Yap, about the relative size of a sunfish in a big lake, is essential to United States cable interests, and the allies promised President Wilson that American interests therein would not be jeopardized.

They forgot their promise. They handed the mandate for Yap over to the Japanese.

The United States protested. Japan stands pat and refuses to yield her mandatory powers.

Now the government at Washington is suddenly increasing the garrison of American troops in Hawaii by 125 per cent, and at the Panama canal by more than 300 per cent.

What next?

Lady Jurors' Good Work.

In county court here a few days ago three women served on the jury trying Willis Levisey and Emmet Gentry for disturbing public worship at Chestnut Ridge Schoolhouse. They were Mrs. Ella Hiatt, Mrs. Bettie Parsons and Mrs. Joe Holson. The verdict was $50 fine and five days jail sentence for each party, and the case was appealed to Circuit Court. These were the first ladies to serve on a jury in Rockcastle county.—Mt Vernon Signal.

GARRAGE AT CAMP ZACHARY TAYLOR

One of the many buildings at the Cantonment which will be torn down in order that the lumber and other materials used in construction may be utilized elsewhere.

In the sale of Camp Zachary Taylor, at auction, beginning Monday, April 25, the cost of building material will be reduced in such drastic manner that the many who have for several years past been living in uncomfortable and crowded conditions, because of the shortage of homes, will be enabled to procure, at their own price, all material necessary for building.

Many million feet of kiln-dried lumber was selected for the construction of this Cantonment, and it was subjected to the most rigid inspection. Having been exposed to the weather for only a short time, it is practically as good as new, and for rough construction work and outdoor purposes on the farm or in the building of a home, it will answer every purpose that lumber fresh from the mill does, and will doubtless sell for considerably less money.

The same is true regarding the plumbing and heating equipment that was used at the camp. This will be sold in small lots so that the small buyer will be in as good a position to take advantage of these bargains as the large buyer who is able to buy several carloads.

The 2,000 buildings will be offered one at a time, and the successful bidder will have the privilege of buying one or more of the particular type of building upon which he made his bid.

Many of the buildings will require but the addition of a porch and a rearrangement of the inside partitions to make them comfortable homes, while

If one wishes to go to the further expense of applying steel lath on the sides and putting stucco on the lath, an artistic, thoroughly modern home could be had for a mere fraction of what it would cost were it not possible to secure this Government property at one's own price, at auction.

The sale will begin on Monday, April 25, and continue until all of the 2,000 buildings and 2,000 acres of land are disposed of. Needless to say, this will be an absolute sale, and the Government will reserve nothing, but will dispose of it all to the highest bidder.

There are many stables, creosote water troughs and creosoted fence post that should particularly appeal to the farmer, who can purchase them at his own figures.

The putting of this mammoth Cantonment on the market for sale at auction will do much to lower the cost of building. The original cost of buildings and land comprising the Cantonment was $10,000,000. It will be sold for just what it will bring at auction. A sale of this magnitude has never before been held in Kentucky, and it offers an unparalleled opportunity to those desiring to purchase building material of every description. The taxpayers who furnished the money to build Camp Zachary Taylor will have an opportunity here to profit by the sale of the land and building material, which will be sold at auction by the Louisville Real Estate and Development Company, of Louisville, who will serve as sales agents for the War Department.

Unite Youth and Linotype.

A campaign among the nation's high schools to interest young men and young women in the mechanical department of the newspaper business was suggested at the recent meeting of the Inland Daily Press Association in Chicago by B. E. Pinkerton of the Mommouth (Ill.) Daily Atlas.

"The linotype situation in regard to operators is serious, especially among the smaller newspapers," he said. "Some one should make a canvass of the high schools with the purpose of trying to interest young men in learning to become operators."

"There is a great field for young men and young women in this work, and unless something is done in regard to training operators newspaper publishers will face a serious labor problem."

BAPTISTS REPORT GAIN IN NUMBERS

IN LAST 14 YEARS THEY HAVE ADDED OVER MILLION MEMBERS IN SOUTH.

WILL MEET IN CHATTANOOGA

Many Matters Related to Future Work Will Come Up for Consideration at the Annual Convention May 12 to 18.

DR. E. Y. MULLINS
President Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Who is Touring South.

Following the close of the second year of the Baptist 75 Million Campaign April 30, several thousand messengers from the local churches are expected to assemble at Chattanooga, Tenn., for the seventy-sixth annual session of the Southern Baptist Convention. The Convention met in Chattanooga last in May, 1906, and during the interim there has been a marked growth in every department of the Convention's activities and in the numbers and work of the local churches as well. The total number of Baptists reported to the Convention in 1906 was 1,855,784, while last May, fourteen years later, when the body met in Washington, the total membership of the local churches as reported was 2,961,348, or a gain of 1,105,564. The returns for this year are not yet available, but inasmuch as it is known there were practically 175,000 additions to the local churches last year by baptism alone, there is every reason to believe the showing for 1921 will be even larger.

Growth Shown in All Lines.

At the same time there has been a marked increase in the membership of the churches, there has been a distinct advance in all departments of local and denominational work. It is set out. The total number of local churches has grown from 20,129 in 1906 to 25,303 in 1920; the total number of Sunday Schools from 11,332 to 17,686; and the number of Sunday School pupils from 857,244 to 1,835,936, an increase of more than 100 per cent. The value of local church property has mounted from 4,501,122 in 1906 to $74,273,728 in 1920, an increase of more than 1600 per cent, while contributions to missions and benevolences in 1906 were $1,501,396.67, as compared to $7,331,266.55 in 1920, an advance of practically 500 per cent. Fourteen years ago the contributions to all purposes in a year were $5,941,283.44, as against $21,327,446.67 for 1920.

Next Meeting Important.

The approaching session of the Convention is regarded as vitally important to the future of the denomination's work. It is hoped that by the Convention two-fifths of all subscriptions to the 75 Million Campaign will have been paid in cash and that the program for the completion of the remainder of the campaign task can be formulated at this time. Dr. J. B. Gambrell, president of the Convention and Dr. E. Y. Mullins, who recently completed a tour of Europe, where they carried fraternal greetings to the Baptists of that continent, will give their impressions of Baptist opportunity in that country, while Dr. George W. Truett and Dr. J. F. Love, who represented the Foreign Mission Board at the London Conference last summer when the mission fields of Europe were considered, will tell of the new territory of Spain, Jugo-Slavia, Hungary, Roumania and Southern Russia which Southern Baptists are asked to occupy. This territory is as large as the Southern States and has a population of 123,000,000.

All the boards of the Convention will report the largest year's accomplishments in their history, the Home Mission Board being scheduled to report the completion of its million dollar loan fund for church building, in addition to the adding of a thousand churches during the year with gifts and loans for the erection of new houses of worship. The Sunday School Board will report more than $1,000,000 in sales for the year and with collections as well as sales better than at any previous time in its history.

A Hard One To Beat.

From down in Pulaski county comes the story of a distressed cow that suffered from an obscure ailment which baffled veterinarians. Throat trouble of aggravated form, was indicated but the symptoms did not agree with any diagnosis they were familiar with or had read about. The cow might be suffering yet, or even passed over the river, except for the inspiration of a small boy, utterly unskilled in the treatment of sick cows, but gifted with an ingrown curiosity. Impelled by this, he investigated the animal's throat from the inside, with his hand, while the sergions were consulting among themselves. When he pulled his hand from the cow's throat he also pulled a sizeable terrapin (called "tarpin" further down South) in it. The cow was relieved at once and after coughing two or three times appeared restored again to normal good health and the joy of living. By way of gratitude she licked the boy's neck and then tried to swallow his cap. Foiled is this she moved sedately away, her head toward the ground probably in search of a groundhog—for this was on the second day of February—her evening meal. The boy looked at the doctors and laughed. The doctors looked at the boy and scowled. Neither said anything. There was nothing to say.

Canada and the Tariff.

Canada shipped 600 millions of dollars' worth of goods to the United States during the calendar year of 1920, and the protectionist in Congress are now proposing to prevent this inflow by means of a prohibitive tariff.

All right, but what of the other side of the picture? During this year, when Canada was shipping 600 million dollars' worth of goods to the United States, the United States was sending 1,000 millions in goods to Canada. In other words, we sold to Canada during the year goods that brought 400 millions in excess of what Canada sold in America. If Canada had not been able to pay in goods, this trade would, of course have been impossible.

And Canada is preparing to strike back hard as soon as American tariff rates go up. A committee from the Canadian Parliament was named three months ago to prepare a retaliatory tariff, and it is understood that the act is ready. Nor will Canada be forced to do without the goods she needs, for Great Britain will be permitted to ship goods in on favored terms, and the only result will be to transfer to English merchants the orders that are now being filled in America.

This question of prohibitive tariffs at this time is after all, a very simple matter. As it is, imports are falling off. If we further increase the tariff rates, they will dwindle to the vanishing point, and our foreign exports will dwindle even more rapidly.—Louisville Post.

Bandits Rob Bank of $11,000

Summitt, Ill., April 2.

Editor News:

As the Summit-State Bank, of Summitt, Ill., opened yesterday morning, a squad of four bandits drove up in front of the bank in a big car. Three of the men jumped from the car, masked, with their guns in their hands. Two of the bandits entered the bank, while one stayed at the door, and the other at the wheel of the car, ready to go when the bank was robbed. A shot was fired at the cashier, which whistled by his ear, and hit the wall not more than one inch from his head. J. E. Maloy entered the bank not knowing the bandits were there. His orders were to face the wall with his hands up, which he obeyed. The bandits then forced two of the women who were employed in the bank, into the vault, and tried to lock the door, but failed. The President and the cashier were both searched. The leader cried "let's go boys, we have enough," and they backed out. Their parting words were "don't try to follow us." They jumped into the waiting car and drove off at the rate of 65 miles an hour. The police were notified, and a gang was soon formed and started on trail of the bandits. The police were in 200 yards of their car and fired several shots, but did not hit. A freight train was coming at the rate of 25 miles an hour, nearly scraped the rear end of the bandits car. If car had been two seconds slower it would have been blocked by the train. They saw it was their chance as the train cut the police off from their car. The police headquarters in Chicago were notified as that was the direction the car was going. The bandits car was found late yesterday at State and Madison streets, but no trace of the bandits can be found. This is the third time that this bank has been robbed in the last three years. It was robbed the same day last year with a loss of $22,000.

The Situation in Mexico.

The Philadelphia Ledger prints a pessimistic copyrighted dispatch relative to affairs in Mexico City, the conclusion being that, despite President Obregon's "firm and intelligent policy," the tides of revolution are again rising in Mexico, and that it is by no means impossible that Obregon will go the path of Carranza before the year 1921 is gathered into history.

There is little room for doubt that, if Obregon does go down, American intervention in Mexico will loom up as a serious possibility. Secretary of the Interior Fall, reputed to be President Harding's adviser upon Mexican affairs, was a rabid interventionist during all of Mr. Wilson's two Presidential terms. Responsibility may have sobered Mr. Fall, but, in the event of the failure of Obregon, any clashes along the border would be sure to aid the interventionists.

But Obregon has not failed yet. His most serious trouble is the bad economic condition of the country, a situation brought about by ten years of revolution. There is a great deal of testimony to show that the Mexicans are tired of revolution. Obregon is both intelligent and firm. He may win out yet.—Evening Post.

Destroying the Federal Reserve Act.

Senator Curtis, of Kansas, the Republican whip in the Senate, and one of the stand-pat leaders of that body, has announced his intention of introducing a bill in Congress to amend the Federal Reserve system.

The bill will provide for a return to the old Aldrich plan of a central bank with branches. If passed, it would destroy the efficacy of the Federal Reserve system as it now operates. The central bank would, of course, be located in New York, and all the other Reserve Banks, which now have equal powers and functions, would be subordinate to the New York bank.

Stripped of false pretenses, the Curtis bill really proposes to transfer the seat of financial control of the Government back to New York, from whence the establishment of the Federal Reserve system removed it eight years ago. The New York money kings, which have been on barren pasture for eight years, would return to the green fields of Governmental favoritism and protection.

During the campaign last fall, Senator Harding or no Republican orator would dare attack the Federal Reserve act. It stood unchallenged as one of the great administrative achievements of the Wilson administration. It was not challenged, because its record defied criticism. Under its operation, the country had withstood the supreme shocks of war and reconstruction alike without a panic. It was the great bulwark of our entire economic structure, but when the Republican party, thoroughly established in power, throws off the mask, it brings forth the Curtis bill to subvert the very root principle of the law, and make it a mockery.

That is a sample of the Republican sense of responsibility at Washington.—Elizabethtown News.

A Taste of Liberty.

"I see where hard cider has won a great victory," remarked Mr. Bibbles. "How's that?" According to a new ruling, a farmer can squeeze the juice out of his apples and let nature take her own course. CAMP ZACHARY TAYLOR

AT ABSOLUTE AUCTION

Beginning Monday, April 25, 1921, at 10 a. m.

And continuing day by day until all land, buildings and equipment have been sold. The properties to be disposed of at this sale, represent an outlay on the part of the Government of

Ten Millions of Dollars

All of which will be sold, in units, to suit purchasers at
The Greatest Auction Sale in History

Sectional view of one of the areas at Camp Zachary Taylor showing character of buildings to be sold.

This Army Camp comprises 2,000 acres of valuable land, adjoining the city of Louisville, together with 2,000 buildings of various sizes, and a vast amount of equipment, such as boilers, plumbers' supplies, stoves, hot water heaters, radiators, electrical equipment, motors, heating and refrigerating plants, etc.

THE BUILDING PROBLEM

For years building has been at a practical standstill. The high cost of material, especially lumber, and the scarcity of labor have compelled a stoppage in the erection of homes, storehouses, barns, etc. That time has now passed. Workmen have been released by the hundreds of thousands and Camp Zachary Taylor will release lumber and equipment. 68,000,000 feet of yellow pine will be disposed of at this sale and at such prices as bidders see fit to pay. Come to this greatest of bargain sales and buy what you want at your own figures. Join with your neighbors in making up car-lots to save freight rates. A vast number of cedar, white oak, chestnut and creosoted fence posts, water troughs and grain bins will interest every farmer. There are miles of woven wire hog-tight fencing. Two grain elevators, completely equipped with motors, conveyors and chutes.

OUR GUARANTEE

This is an absolute sale. You win or you lose on April 25th. We sell no one privately, but do an exclusive auction business. No set price, no reservation, no by-bidding, no private sale. This has been our motto for the twelve years we have been in business, during which time we have operated from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, and have never failed or refused to sell a single piece of land, or property of any kind, after it was placed under the hammer. You make the price. The Government makes the deed. That's all.

Not A Sectional Question.

It is said to be the theory of the Congressional leaders of the Republican party that "the Democratic South is permeated with protectionist theories," and that, therefore, no loud outcry may be expected from the Senators and Representatives from that section if another Payne-Aldrich tariff bill is passed.

Louisiana is a protectionist State, and the Senators and Representatives from that State have repeatedly evinced a willingness to vote against the principles of the party that elected them in order to get sugar duties for Louisiana. Scattered through other Southern States there are men who believe in the protective theory, but a large majority Southern people adhere to the Democratic principle of a revenue tariff.

But little will be accomplished by considering the tariff as a sectional matter. The men who most vigorously assailed the Payne-Aldrich bill in 1909 were Republican Senators from the West. And in the East itself there are hundreds of thousands of wage earners who object to being taxed for the financial benefit of a small group. The Republican party has a sufficient majority in Congress to pass any kind of a tariff bill the leaders may decide upon, but the fact remains that another Payne-Aldrich bill will kill our foreign trade, and, in the end kill the party that is responsible.—Louisville Post.

The first pardon Senator Harding extended was to a Pittsburgh bootlegger.

Farmers who have old corn to spare are advised to sell it as quickly as possible. Corn is coming down and there is no telling how low it will come. We heard an experienced farmer say last Thursday that prospects for a bumper crop this year was never better, and it is generally believed that when the new crop comes in, corn will not sell for over $2.00 or $2.25 per barrel. Again, the prospects for a wheat crop, according to acreage sown, is unusually good. This also means low price hogs.

Condition of the Fruit Crop.

Grapes—practically unhurt.
